CHICAGO BRIDGEBUILDERS FUND SPONSORSHIP OVERVIEW

THE CHALLENGE

Historic community disinvestment throughout Chicago has created neighborhoods lacking resources and opportunities such as affordable housing, quality education, and living wage jobs. These disparities primarily impact residents on the city's South and West Sides and in the south suburban region.

Nonprofit organizations in historically disinvested communities often struggle to connect with funders and get ongoing support for strategies that reflect the culture and needs of the people they serve. This has led to significant disparities in investment in these organizations.

OUR SOLUTION

The Chicago BridgeBuilders Fund is United Way of Metro Chicago's philanthropic commitment to addressing these barriers and creating a stronger Chicago region.

The Fund supports small, local organizations leading a variety of dynamic work, from arts and culture to youth development to mental health support, on the South and West Sides of Chicago and in the south suburbs. The Chicago BridgeBuilders Fund provides unrestricted funding, networking and relationship building, and tailored capacity building to meet the organizations' needs and advance their long-term goals.

> [United Way's support] has helped Peace Runners create new roles and responsibilities – a chief operating officer, community engagement, and coaches. This gives me space to grow. I credit a lot of that to United Way for helping me create access and giving me tools so I can be a better executive director and leader.
